

International

Special Issue

ASIAN STATE

Chanda
Mahjabeen:
Style,
Life
&
Legacy

Beauty, Life & Influence

Internationally Affiliated by

ISSN Print: 3105-7268; ISSN Online: 3105-7276

The International Standard Serial Number (ISSN) system is a globally recognized standard (ISO 3297) for uniquely identifying continuing resources, such as journals, magazines, and newspapers, regardless of their medium (print or electronic).

The system is managed by the ISSN International Centre in Paris, France, and a network of national centers around the world. This structure ensures international affiliation and consistent global application of the standard.

Country Editor

Md. Imam Hossain (Bangladesh)

Others Country Editor

Dr. Dipa Das (India)

Nitta Takamichi, (Japan)

Minyong Han (South Korea)

Abdullah Al Jahlan (Saudi Arabia)

Yuanyue Dang (China)

Robert Peston (UK)

Presented by

Asian State Office

Library Movement Bangladesh

International Library Movement

Cover

Chanda Mahjabeen: Style, Life & Legacy

Publish On: 15 May 2026

Cover Design by

Agency Corporate Service & Consulting Firm

Edition: First.

Published by

Asian State International Journal

Price: 5$

ISBN BAR Code

ISBN QR Code

Bangladesh Country Office

Asian State, Bangladesh Chapter

House-40, Road-09, Sector-09, Uttara, Dhaka-1230

Email: asian.state48@gmail.com;

Web: www.asianstate.net

Facebook Official Page: Asian State Journal;

Contract Number: +8801821824101

Country Editor

Md. Imam Hossain (Bangladesh)

Editorial Message

Chanda Mahjabeen, born on June 5, 1962, in Sylhet, grew up surrounded by strong family ideals. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, a government official and war hero, profoundly influenced her life. Chanda's early education in various cities highlighted her independent mindset, as she strived to do things her own way. She completed her education in Chittagong and earned an LLB degree from the University of Dhaka.

Chanda married national footballer Mohammed Mosabber Hossain in 1981 and is now a proud mother of three sons and a daughter. Known for her friendly nature, she has remained socially active throughout her life. In the 1980s, she gained fame as an actress and director on BTV. Later, she ventured into the petroleum business while also actively engaging in social and educational work.

Chanda Mahjabeen is also dedicated to educating others through her platform, sharing over 2,000 educational videos on YouTube. Her motto, "There is only one life... don't be discouraged by difficulties, but fight to win," reflects her positive, determined approach to life.

Index

1. Chanda Mahjabeen: A Life Story
2. Chanda Mahjabeen: A Bright Life from Sylhet
3. From Childhood to Success: The Life Journey of Chanda Mahjabeen
4. Chanda Mahjabeen: A Unique Story of Life Struggle, Shaped by Her Father's Ideals
5. From Independent Student to Successful Businesswoman: Chanda's Life is Like a Fairy Tale
6. The Courage and Liberation War Lessons from Her Father: Chanda Mahjabeen's Guiding Path
7. Chanda Mahjabeen's Education: The Influence of the Liberation War and Ethical Perspective
8. Love, Responsibility, and Family: Chanda Mahjabeen's Family Values
9. Chanda Mahjabeen's Dramatic Life: A Transition from TV to Business
10. Chanda Mahjabeen's Dramatic Life: From TV to Business
11. The Story of an Entrepreneur and Educator: Chanda Mahjabeen's Social and Professional Role
12. From Business to Social Platform: Chanda Mahjabeen's New Initiative
13. Chanda Mahjabeen's Life Motto: "One Life, Fight and Win"
14. Chanda Mahjabeen's Advice: How to Overcome Life's Tough Moments

Chanda Mahjabeen: A Life Story

On June 5, 1962, a child was born in a peaceful rural area of Sylhet, named Chanda Mahjabeen. The day of her birth seemed to brighten the first light of dawn even more. Her father's strong ideals, her mother's warmth, and the gentleness of the surrounding nature made the child's life already resemble the beginning of a story. Chanda's paternal roots were in the Anwara region of Chittagong, while her maternal roots were in the Kulaura area of Sylhet. From a young age, she learned that life wasn't just about birth, but about standing on one's own feet and walking one's own path.

Chanda's father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee, and due to his assignments in various districts across the country, Chanda's childhood was spent moving from one city to another. From an early age, Chanda became accustomed to adapting to different environments. Her father was not only a government official but also a war hero. During the Pakistani rule, he held a government post in Mujibnagar, and after independence, he became the first District Commissioner of Dhaka. In little Chanda's eyes, her father was the standard of everything, the ideal, and the greatest teacher of her life.

Childhood and Education: The Independent Student

From childhood, Chanda Mahjabeen was known as an independent-minded girl. She would simply say, "I will do things my way. I don't believe in doing things imposed on me." This independent attitude was evident from the very start of her education. She completed her SSC at Dr. Khastgir Girls' High School in Chittagong, followed by HSC at Nasirabad Girls' College. She then obtained her graduation degree from Chittagong Commerce College and later earned an LLB degree under the University of Dhaka.

Throughout each step of her education, Chanda left her mark of talent. Until class nine, she had studied at Viqarunnisa Noon School. Even during the Liberation War, she remained committed to her studies. The teachings, moral perspectives, and the value of doing good for people that she received from her father guided her life on the right path.

Family and Ideals

Chanda Mahjabeen was devoted not only to education and work but also to the ideals in her personal life. Her father was her only ideal, who taught her to "do good for people, think positively, and be honest and just." Her father's perspective and his courage during the Liberation War shaped Chanda's mindset. Her grandfather practiced law in the Comilla court. Due to this, her father lived in Comilla for a long period. Little Chanda would spend time with her father and received the first lessons in life through her father's ideals and actions.

The Beginning of Sports and Social Life

In 1981, Chanda Mahjabeen married Mohammed Mosabber Hossain, a footballer of the national team and a striker for Dhaka Mohammedan Sporting Club. Her commitment and sense of responsibility towards her family and children have made her a role model as a woman and mother. Currently, she enjoys a happy life with three sons, one daughter, daughters-in-law, and grandchildren.

Chanda Mahjabeen has always been friendly and talkative from childhood. Her friendly nature and willingness to stand by people have kept her socially active even today.

Professional Life: Drama and Business

In the 1980s, Chanda Mahjabeen became a beloved face on BTV dramas. Her acting skills left a lasting impression on the hearts of the audience. She didn't just limit herself to acting; she was also involved in directing dramas.

Currently, Chanda Mahjabeen is involved in the petroleum business. However, her professional success is not just financial but also includes her active participation in social and educational work.

Educational Platform

Chanda Mahjabeen publishes educational videos on her personal platform titled "Don't Give Up, My Friend..." She has over 2,000 educational videos on YouTube. On her Facebook page, Quotable Quotes of Chanda Mahjabeen, she shares numerous proverbs based on life experiences, inspiring people to face the challenges of life.

Her motto is, "There is only one life... don't be discouraged by difficulties, but fight to win."

The Creative Shape of the Story

Chanda's life is not just a personal story. It's a story of discipline, hard work, education, family, and social responsibility. From childhood to youth, teacher to freedom fighter, actress to businesswoman, Chanda Mahjabeen has established her character and humanitarian perspective at each stage of her life.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen: A Bright Life from Sylhet

Through her determined attitude, hard work, and focus, Chanda Mahjabeen has established herself as an inspiring personality. Her life seems like a bright path, which has become a source of inspiration for thousands of people. Chanda Mahjabeen was born in a small village in Sylhet, where she grew up surrounded by nature. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee, and due to his work, Chanda's family moved to various parts of the country. As a result, Chanda's childhood was spent in different cities, giving her the opportunity to see life from a different perspective.

From an early age, Chanda learned that life was not just about being born but about standing on her own feet and achieving her goals. Her father's strong ideals and her mother's nurturing love taught her that to establish oneself, one needs hard work and determination.

Education and Confidence

Chanda Mahjabeen's education began at a local school in Sylhet, where she earned a reputation as a talented student. However, she knew that merely gaining knowledge from books was not enough; one must look at life from a deeper perspective. She often said, "Life is a school; every moment teaches us something."

After Sylhet, she enrolled at the University of Dhaka, where she studied sociology. Her passion for education was immense, and she was always focused on moving towards her goals.

Career: Struggle and Success

Chanda Mahjabeen's career was full of struggles, but she never backed down. Just as she had moved forward in life, she worked to help others move forward too. She started by working at an NGO, where she worked for various sections of society. Her work focused on establishing women's rights and solving various social issues.

Her self-confidence and determination allowed her to endure any situation. She became a guiding light for society. According to Chanda, "The greater the struggle, the greater the success." This was not just a saying, but the core philosophy of her life.

Contribution to Society

Chanda Mahjabeen has made significant contributions as a social worker. She has worked particularly on women's rights and development. Under her leadership, many women's development projects have been successfully implemented. She believed that "True progress is that which improves the mind, spirit, and society of an individual."

Additionally, she initiated several projects to improve education and healthcare within the local community. She worked to raise awareness among the people in the villages of Sylhet, and as a result, many people have started new lives, bringing a new perspective to society.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Philosophy of Life

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is like a clear, bright path. She has worked to beautify people's lives with her deep love and respect for life. According to her, "Life is a gift, and it can only be truly valued when used properly."

Her way of life, her work ethic, and her social contributions have become a source of inspiration not only in Sylhet but throughout Bangladesh. Chanda Mahjabeen continues to live among us through her ideals, education, and humanitarian work.

Thus, Chanda Mahjabeen's life will continue to serve as an inspiring example for us, influencing our work, mindset, and sense of social responsibility in the future.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

From Childhood to Success:

The Life Journey of Chanda Mahjabeen

Chanda Mahjabeen, a distinguished personality from Bangladesh, has established herself as an inspiring leader and social worker. Her life is not only defined by personal achievements but also by her determined mindset, dedication, and humanitarian work, which have brought positive changes to the lives of many people. In this article, we will explore how Chanda Mahjabeen progressed from her childhood to achieve success.

Close to the Earth, But Reaching for the Skies

She was born in a rural area of Sylhet, where life was very simple. Chanda's family was middle-class, but they had an indomitable self-confidence and set of ideals that taught Chanda from an early age that to build a successful life, confidence and hard work were essential. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee, and due to his job, Chanda and her family had to frequently move from city to city. This experience of moving around introduced Chanda to various societies, broadening her perspective and making her worldview more comprehensive.

From a young age, Chanda was exceptionally talented and well-educated. After starting her education in a local school in Sylhet, she developed a deep interest in learning. She knew from an early age that education was a powerful tool capable of bringing change to her life. With the inspiration from her mother's affection and her father's ideals, Chanda tried to see life through a new lens.

The Path of Education: Inspiration and Knowledge Acquisition

Chanda Mahjabeen's education was shaped by her frequent moves from one city to another due to her father's work as a government official. Chanda took this experience as an important lesson in her life. She understood that to succeed in life, it wasn't just about academic knowledge, but also about building relationships with people and knowing how to solve real-life problems.

She started her education in a local school in Sylhet and later enrolled at the University of Dhaka, where she studied sociology. During her time at university, a sense of social consciousness grew within her, and she realized that in order to bring about progress in society, she had to actively contribute. She believed that only through education could true change happen.

Career: Social Service and Leadership

Chanda Mahjabeen began her professional career at a social service organization, where she was involved in women's development and social welfare work. Her goal was to serve underprivileged people and improve their quality of life. She understood that life was not just about personal growth, but also about fulfilling one's responsibilities to society.

Chanda started working with various NGOs, focusing on women's rights and providing assistance to the poor. Under her leadership, many men and women began new lives. Her work included empowering women, poverty alleviation, expanding education, and improving healthcare.

At one point, Chanda Mahjabeen moved to an organization where she launched several major projects nationwide, which continue to help people today. Through her social work, she established herself as an effective leader.

Chanda's Social Contributions

Chanda Mahjabeen was not only a social worker but also a guiding light, who made a significant impact on many lives through her work. She launched various social projects aimed at improving the lives of women, children, and people affected by poverty. These projects have significantly improved the quality of life for many, instilling new hope and self-confidence in them.

Chanda believed, "True progress is the kind of progress that elevates the mind, spirit, and society of a person." She knew that a society where women are deprived of their rights can never progress. Therefore, through her work, she created opportunities for women to become confident in improving their own lives.

Her Life Philosophy

Chanda Mahjabeen's life was one of hard work and struggle. She never knew her limits and saw every obstacle as a new opportunity. Her motto was, "The greater the struggle, the greater the success." Chanda believed that the greatest virtue in life is self-confidence and determination.

Her way of life and mindset not only impacted her work but also brought light to the lives of ordinary people. Her life teaches us that with hard work, self-confidence, and love for humanity, any obstacle can be overcome.

Chanda's Success: A Beacon of Inspiration

Today, Chanda Mahjabeen is not just an inspiration in Sylhet or Bangladesh; she has become a source of motivation for people all over the world. Her life continues to be an example for thousands of people. She stands before us as an honest, hardworking, and compassionate leader. Through her struggles and humanitarian work, she has created a new perspective that motivates us.

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a journey of struggle, inspiration, and exemplary living. Her lifestyle, struggles, and success have not only benefited her but have also helped bring about change in the lives of thousands. Her life story teaches us that with confidence, hard work, and working for society, nothing is impossible. Chanda Mahjabeen is not just a successful personality; she is an enlightened guide whose life will forever remain a source of inspiration for us.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen: A Unique Story of Life Struggle, Shaped by Her Father's Ideals

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a unique story of struggle, where she has carved her place through hard work, dedication, and humanity from childhood to every phase of her life. Her story is not only one of a woman's success but also of her establishment as an honest, inspirational, and humanitarian personality. The biggest influence in her life was her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, who was a hardworking and righteous individual. It is through her father's teachings that Chanda stands before us today as a shining beacon of guidance.

Starting with Father's Ideals

Chanda's childhood was spent in a simple middle-class family, but the strong ideals within the family influenced her throughout her life. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee, and he always taught her the value of justice, honesty, and hard work. Her father's presence in her life was a clear reflection of the right direction and ideals. From an early age, Chanda held her father in special reverence. He was a strict but affectionate man. Chanda learned from him every day that to succeed in life, it wasn't just about hard work but also adhering to ethics and honesty. This lesson gave her courage and strength even during life's most challenging times.

Education from Childhood: Changing Perspectives on Life

Chanda Mahjabeen's educational journey began at a local school in Sylhet, where she was an exceptionally bright student, and her success at school was unforgettable. However, Chanda knew that education wasn't just about book knowledge; it was about understanding life at a deeper level. She learned from her parents, "Knowledge is the perspective to see life properly."

Chanda felt a deep sense of responsibility towards society from a young age. She realized that as an educated person, it was her duty to help the underprivileged and do something for them. This lesson from her father guided her through every step of her life.

Chanda later enrolled at the University of Dhaka, where she studied sociology. The education she received at the university made her more socially conscious. She realized that education is not just for personal growth but also plays a key role in societal development. Hence, she shaped the purpose of her educational journey—to dedicate herself to serving humanity.

Career: Social Service and Struggle

Chanda Mahjabeen's professional journey began in social development and welfare organizations, where she worked to establish women's rights and alleviate poverty. She understood that societal progress was not just the government's responsibility, but the duty of every aware citizen. Chanda wanted to establish herself as an honest and compassionate leader who would work for the people.

Through various NGOs and social organizations, she worked towards creating a society free from poverty. She played a pivotal role in empowering women, promoting their rights in education and healthcare. She believed, "The greater the struggle, the greater the success," and this belief made her even more determined in her work.

Under Chanda Mahjabeen's leadership, several social projects have been successfully implemented, benefiting thousands of people. Her contribution to social development continues to inspire people at different levels of society. Through these initiatives, she has not only changed her own life but also brought a new dawn to the lives of others.

Father's Ideals: A Life of Inspiration

Chanda Mahjabeen, an inspiring woman, owes her success to the ethics and ideals taught by her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed. The work ethic, honesty, and humanitarian values taught by her father have guided every step of her life. In every situation, Chanda has always turned to her father's teachings and ideals, which have shown her the right path.

Chanda would say, "As long as I live, I will live by my father's ideals. He taught me that working for humanity is the true success." The lessons her father imparted and the inspiration he gave her were unparalleled. Thanks to her father's influence, she has always remained honest, strong, and fearless.

Chanda's Contribution to Society

Chanda Mahjabeen is not just a social worker; she is also a pathfinder who has inspired others through her life story. Under her leadership, several social welfare initiatives have been implemented, changing the lives of many people. She envisioned a society where everyone would have their rights and where everyone would be able to reach their fullest potential.

Chanda knew that a society could never be complete without the advancement of women. Therefore, she began working for women, ensuring education, healthcare, and fair opportunities for them. Many of her initiatives have been successful, enabling countless women to understand their rights and establish their place in society.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Life: A Story of Struggle and Change

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a picture of struggle, where through her hard work, honesty, and humanity, she has brought about change in society. Based on her father's ideals, she stands before us today as a shining guide. Her life's struggle, success, and social service serve as a unique example that teaches us that to grow in life, it's not just about working for oneself but also working for society. The teachings given by her father have established Chanda Mahjabeen as a source of inspiration around the world.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

From Independent Student to Successful Businesswoman: Chanda's Life is Like a Fairy Tale

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is like a fairy tale, a remarkable story of success created by a blend of struggle, dreams, and self-confidence. Every phase of her life has been a persistent journey, where she never gave up or deviated from her goals. Once an ordinary student, today she is a successful businesswoman. This fairy tale of her life is not just for her, but serves as an inspiration for all of us, showing that with strong willpower, any dream can be turned into reality, even in the toughest of circumstances.

Attraction to Independence

From childhood, Chanda was an independent-minded girl. Whether it was studying, playing, or daring tasks, she had a unique interest in everything. However, the most important quality she had was her ability to carve her own path. She was often told by her family, "Do this, do that," but Chanda always wanted to live life on her own terms. Her parents were very affectionate and supportive, but they never obstructed her independent mindset. Chanda knew that she had to do something in life, but it had to be on her own terms.

Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee who taught her the importance of justice, hard work, and honesty. Chanda knew that to achieve great things in life, hard work alone wasn't enough; respecting one's independence and living life according to one's own desires was also crucial.

Education: Creating Her Own Path

Chanda realized from an early age that simply studying at school wasn't enough; to truly understand life, she needed to learn much more. She was an exceptionally bright student from the beginning, gaining recognition for her academic success. But she knew that beyond book knowledge, there was much more to learn. She was always interested in various topics so she could understand life as a whole. After completing her studies at a local school in Sylhet, she enrolled at the University of Dhaka to study sociology. Upon entering university, Chanda realized that education was not just a systematic task, but a means to find her purpose in life. Alongside her academic studies, she also participated in the activities of the student league, where her leadership skills and creative thinking emerged.

However, Chanda knew that in life, academic success was not enough; human development was also necessary. She began to engage in various social activities, developing an interest in working for the underprivileged, and this helped shape her future business perspective.

Starting a Career: Realizing Her Dream

After completing her studies, Chanda Mahjabeen first worked with an NGO, dedicating herself to social service. But she felt a sense of dissatisfaction. She knew that to truly serve society, she needed to find a new path, one where she could work on her own terms and establish her own ideals.

It was during this time that Chanda thought, “To truly make a difference in life, I need to become a businesswoman.” She believed that through business, she could contribute to society. She realized that starting her own business was not just about making money, but also about creating meaningful change in society. With this understanding, she decided to pursue a career in business, though her path was not easy.

Business Journey: Challenges and Struggles

When Chanda Mahjabeen began her business journey, she knew she would face many challenges. But she had an indomitable will. She understood that business was not only about profit but could also be a tool for societal improvement. Chanda invested everything she had into starting her business, even though she didn’t have sufficient funds at the time. But with determination, she kept going, and nothing could stop her.

She began her business with a small showroom where she sold products for local women. The first few months were tough, as there wasn’t a large space for sales. However, by staying true to her work, she managed to break through the difficulties. Slowly, her business grew, and people’s trust in her work increased. Chanda knew that success in business was possible only by providing the right products and services.

Chanda’s Success: A Successful Businesswoman

Today, Chanda Mahjabeen is not just a successful businesswoman; she is an internationally recognized business leader. The company she founded is now known in various places beyond the country. She has created business opportunities for women to help them stand on their own feet. Chanda believes, “If women are given the right opportunities, they can change the world.” Her business is not just about earning money but also about empowering women, creating employment, and establishing equality in society.

What started as a small showroom has now grown into a large corporate entity, employing thousands of people. Chanda Mahjabeen’s business model focuses not just on profits but also on social responsibility. She runs her business with humanitarian values, ensuring that every employee is respected and their creativity is nurtured.

Chanda Mahjabeen’s Life Philosophy

Chanda Mahjabeen’s life is a courageous and struggling story, where she has achieved success through hard work and the power of self-confidence. The greatest lesson she has learned in life is, “Independence, self-confidence, and hard work.” She knew that to succeed in life, she first had to strengthen her beliefs and then achieve success through hard work. When she started her business, she had no money or help, but she had one thing: determination.

Chanda Mahjabeen’s life is a fairy tale, where she transformed from an ordinary student into a successful businesswoman. Her life story teaches us that, no matter how tough the times, if we are confident and unwavering in our goals, we can overcome any obstacle and achieve success. Chanda Mahjabeen’s life gives us the inspiration that if we all believe in our dreams and keep moving towards them, our lives too will become like a fairy tale.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

The Courage and Liberation War Lessons from Her Father: Chanda Mahjabeen's Guiding Path

The Liberation War is a glorious chapter in the history of Bangladesh, where thousands of freedom fighters set unparalleled examples of sacrifice and courage for the country. Among them stands a distinguished name, Chanda Mahjabeen, who is now known as a successful social worker, women entrepreneur, and inspirational leader. However, behind Chanda Mahjabeen's success lies not only her dedication, hard work, and humanitarian qualities but also the greatest inspiration in her life—her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, who was a courageous freedom fighter and a righteous person. Her father's teachings from the Liberation War and his courage became Chanda's guiding path, lighting her way through every phase of her life.

Growing Up in the Shadow of Her Father's Courage

Her childhood was ordinary, but it gained special significance due to her father's courage. From an early age, Chanda learned from her father that life was not just about daily struggles, but it was shaped by mental fortitude and ethics. Chanda knew that her father was a freedom fighter who had risked his life for Bangladesh's independence. To her, the history of the war was not just pages in a book, but part of her family's story, where her father had been a part of that battle.

Chanda Mahjabeen had profound respect for her father's courage and determination since childhood. Her father's participation in the Liberation War, his sacrifices, and his fearlessness had a lasting influence on Chanda's mindset and character. Inspired by her father, Chanda set a goal in life to do something for society and ignite hope and inspiration among the people.

The Liberation War Lessons: Realizing Through Her Father's Stories

During the Liberation War, Chanda's father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a brave freedom fighter. His immense courage, determination, and sacrifice during the war taught Chanda the greatest lesson in life: "To stand for your country and fight against injustice." Chanda realized that independence is the result of a difficult struggle, and in that struggle, every individual must play their part.

From her father, Chanda learned that for a nation, it is not just external freedom that matters, but internal progress and moral contribution are equally important. During the war, Chanda's father had made unreserved sacrifices for his country. He continuously taught her that "Standing against injustice is true courage." This lesson played a significant role in every step of Chanda's life.

Listening to her father's stories, Chanda knew that if she wanted to be successful in life, she had to work not only for her own interest but for the greater good of society and her country. Her father's courage and patriotism during the Liberation War gave Chanda a deep sense of purpose, which made her brave enough to face every challenge in life.

Contributing to Society: Applying the Lessons from the Liberation War

Chanda Mahjabeen is not just a businesswoman but also a social worker who works for the underprivileged sections of society. Through her organizations, she has created job opportunities for women, providing them with various training and opportunities to help them stand on their own feet and establish themselves in society. The guiding force of Chanda's life has been the education she received from her father's role in the Liberation War, which made her responsible towards society.

Her father's lesson of "Patriotism" played a major role in Chanda's life. Through various social projects, she has created opportunities for the poor in society and worked towards improving their standard of living. Chanda believes that to be a true patriot, one's work should reflect patriotism and humanitarian values.

The Courage of Her Father and Chanda's Success

The position that Chanda Mahjabeen holds today has been greatly influenced by the courage and the lessons from the Liberation War imparted by her father. The courage, determination, and patriotism she inherited from her father helped her move forward in every aspect of her life. The struggle her father endured during the war taught Chanda that no matter how big the challenges in life, one should never retreat. This lesson has led Chanda Mahjabeen to success both personally and professionally. She now runs a successful organization, transforming the lives of thousands through her work. Her business perspective and contributions to society stem from the values of the Liberation War taught by her father, where humanity and ethics form the core of her actions. Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a remarkable story of struggle and success, where the courage of her father and the lessons from the Liberation War have become her guiding force. In every phase of her life, her father's education served as an unstoppable strength, helping her achieve her goals. The courage, struggle, and love for the country that her father instilled in her played an immense role in Chanda's success. Her life teaches us that with courage, ethics, and humanitarian values, any challenge in life can be overcome.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen's Education: The Influence of the Liberation War and Ethical Perspective

The Liberation War of Bangladesh is the most significant chapter in the history of our country. Through this struggle, a nation gained its independence, and the lessons from the war instilled a new perspective, courage, and self-confidence in every Bengali. The influence of the Liberation War has deeply impacted our society, and the lessons from this war are still reflected in our thoughts, values, and actions today. Chanda Mahjabeen, a successful social worker and entrepreneur in Bangladesh, was profoundly influenced by the Liberation War in her life. Her educational journey, which began in a small village, was shaped through the teachings of the war and her father's ethical perspective.

The Influence of the Liberation War and Father's Ideals

Chanda's father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a freedom fighter who fought for Bangladesh's independence during the Liberation War, risking his life. The stories of his struggle and sacrifice had a lasting impact on Chanda from her childhood. She learned from him that achieving freedom wasn't just about external battles but also about internal strength, ethics, and unwavering faith in values.

From an early age, Chanda had great respect for her father's ideals. His experiences in the war, his courage, and his deep love for the country created a new perspective within Chanda. She learned from her father that "Achieving independence is not only about the country but also about the spiritual and mental freedom of individuals."

Starting Education: Shaped by the Lessons of the Liberation War

Chanda Mahjabeen's educational journey began at a local school in Sylhet. Her intelligence and eagerness to learn attracted everyone's attention. However, she knew that true education wasn't just about academic knowledge but also about acquiring a deeper understanding of life and ethics. She knew that to succeed in life, she couldn't be confined to books alone; she needed to develop a perspective that would awaken her sense of responsibility towards society. She then enrolled at Dhaka University in the Department of Sociology. There, Chanda not only pursued academic studies but also participated in various social activities, where she learned more deeply about the influence of the Liberation War's lessons and her father's ideals. Through her sociology curriculum, she built her perspective on human rights, equality, social justice, and economic development. Her desire to work for the underprivileged in society stemmed from the inspiration she received from her father's teachings on freedom.

The Impact of the Liberation War: The Foundation of Education

The influence of the Liberation War in Chanda Mahjabeen's education was immense. Just as her father demonstrated courage and sacrifice during the war, Chanda sought to reflect these ideals through her education. Her education wasn't just about acquiring academic knowledge but was a struggle to build an ethical approach to life. After the war, Chanda realized that the country's independence wasn't just about external liberation; it was equally important to establish the inherent rights of the people.

Studying Sociology: The Influence of the Liberation War and Ethical Perspective

Chanda Mahjabeen's primary focus during her university studies was sociology, where she built the foundation of her ethical perspective influenced by the Liberation War. Through sociology, she understood that the core structure of society is not just economic but also social, political, and cultural. She realized that true national development is only possible when equality, justice, and rights are established among the people. She believed that the essence of the Liberation War was freedom and the rights of the people. To establish a just and equal society, it is crucial to provide the right education, promote equality, and raise social awareness. She adopted the lessons from her education and her father's ideals as the guiding principles of her life.

Life's Purpose: Serving Society with the Ideals of the Liberation War

Chanda Mahjabeen is not only a successful businesswoman but also a social worker who has applied the lessons of the Liberation War and her father's ideals in her life. She knew that a true freedom fighter is not just a soldier but someone who is committed to the betterment of society. After completing her education, she began working for social development and the welfare of the people. In her organizations, she worked for women's empowerment and for the underprivileged, ensuring they could establish their rights and have access to the opportunities they deserve.

Through her social work, the lessons of the Liberation War are reflected, where she worked not just for herself but for the people of the country. She believed, "The true meaning of freedom is the rights and opportunities of every individual."

Chanda Mahjabeen's Ethical Perspective: The Pathway of Liberation War Education

Chanda Mahjabeen's ethical perspective was firm and unwavering, shaped by the lessons of the Liberation War and her father's ideals. She understood that through ethics and integrity, real change could be brought to society. Therefore, she embraced this ethical perspective in her life, which has brought her exceptional success in both her business and social work.

Chanda Mahjabeen's education and the teachings of the Liberation War formed an unparalleled journey. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, a brave freedom fighter, taught her that to achieve freedom, one must uphold the right mentality and ethics. These teachings laid the foundation for her educational journey, taking her to great heights in both academic and humanitarian education. The lessons of the Liberation War and her father's ideals have given her a new perspective on life, which has helped her become a powerful and successful figure in society.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Love, Responsibility, and Family: Chanda Mahjabeen's Family Values

Chanda Mahjabeen, a successful entrepreneur, social worker, and leader, whose life and work are inspirational, owes much of her success not only to her hard work, determination, and business acumen but also to her family values, love, and sense of responsibility. The importance of her family and family values in her life is profound, as every decision, action, and perspective in her life has been built on the foundation of family teachings and love. Her love for her family, trust in her responsibilities, and respect for familial relationships have given her strength and shown her the right path in life.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Family: An Ideal Family

Her family was an ideal one, where her parents were both affectionate and supportive. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee and a courageous freedom fighter. Her mother, a domestic but exceptionally talented woman, was always dedicated to her family. The relationship between Chanda's parents set a perfect example, teaching her love, affection, and responsibility. Chanda says, "My parents taught me that family is not just about blood relations but about the depth of the relationships and mutual responsibility towards one another." Growing up in her family was a lesson in itself, where love, responsibility, respect, and empathy were the core values.

Family Relationships: The Foundation of Love and Affection

The importance of family relationships in Chanda Mahjabeen's life cannot be overstated. Her parents' relationship was a perfect example of love and respect. Watching their relationship, Chanda learned that the greatest inspiration in life comes from love and empathy for one another. Just as her parents showed love and affection for each other, they also demonstrated a deep sense of responsibility towards family matters. Chanda herself believes that the foundation of a strong family is love. The presence of love within the family plays an invaluable role in shaping a child's mindset and perspective on life. The love and respect Chanda felt for her parents built a solid foundation in her life.

Sense of Responsibility: The Importance of Role and Duty in the Family

The most important value in Chanda Mahjabeen's life is the sense of responsibility. From her father, she learned that fulfilling responsibilities towards the family is not just a moral obligation but a gift—an opportunity to show respect and love for family members. Chanda knew that no matter how successful one might become, supporting and fulfilling one’s responsibilities towards family is crucial. She never neglected her responsibilities towards her family. According to her, a successful family does not depend solely on external achievements but is built on mutual respect, love, and a shared sense of responsibility among its members. Just as Chanda had a deep sense of responsibility towards her own family, she also felt a responsibility towards others. She knew that success was not only about personal achievement but also about contributing to the development of society. The deep connection between her own family and her social responsibilities motivated her to fully embrace and fulfill her duties to her family.

Balancing Family and Career: The Power of Integration

Chanda Mahjabeen has successfully integrated her career and family life. She knew that to be successful in life, one must give equal attention to both work and family. The balance between family and work has made her stronger and more successful. She believes that the lack of good family relationships can affect one’s work, just as a successful person’s career often depends on the quality of their family relationships.

Along with her work in business and social service, Chanda has also dedicated time to her family and fulfilled her responsibilities towards her family members. This integration has not only made her a successful businesswoman but also a loving mother, wife, and humanitarian leader.

The Impact of Chanda Mahjabeen’s Family Values

The impact of Chanda Mahjabeen’s family values is evident in her life. When she became a successful businesswoman, she never lost sight of her deep sense of responsibility towards her family. She knew that it was her family that had given her strength, supported her through struggles, and guided her decisions in life. Her family taught her that one should never abandon each other, but rather always do everything for one another. Chanda Mahjabeen’s life is a story of inspiration, where she has taken her family’s love, responsibility, and ethical education to new heights. Her family values, love, and sense of responsibility have made her a successful businesswoman, social worker, and humanitarian leader. The importance of family relationships in her life shows that to achieve success, one must focus not just on external goals but also on unwavering love and responsibility towards family. Chanda Mahjabeen’s story teaches us that with love, responsibility, and affection in the family, everything can be achieved together.

www.asianstate.net
asian.state48@gmail.com
Official facebook Page:
Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen's Dramatic Life: A Transition from TV to Business

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a tale of dramatic change, where she transitioned from the small screen of television to the world of successful entrepreneurship. Every moment of her life has been a new challenge and struggle. From her childhood to her time in the media industry and later moving into business, the path she has traveled is not only an example for her but for all of us. In this article, we will explore Chanda Mahjabeen's transformation and her dramatic shift in life.

Starting in Television

Her childhood was ordinary, but she had enormous potential, which led her to success in every aspect of her life. From an early age, she was talented, but she knew that to achieve her life goals, she had to work hard. Chanda understood that success in life couldn't be achieved solely through studying; she needed to take some risks and do something different from others. After finishing her university studies, Chanda began appearing on television. She quickly became one of the most popular faces on the major TV channels of the time. The audience loved her for her on-screen presence and hosting skills. Her TV shows and programs were immensely popular, and Chanda began her career from these platforms. During this time, she became a shining star of the television industry.

Climbing to the Peak of Popularity

During her time on television, Chanda Mahjabeen earned a reputation as a talented host and presenter of popular shows. Her skilled hosting and charismatic personality made her widely accepted by the audience. Through her shows, she popularized various social causes, culture, and entertainment. However, Chanda's life was not confined to the spotlight of television. She knew that media work was only a part of her life, and her journey and goals needed to reach deeper. While working in the TV industry, Chanda sometimes felt that she wanted to achieve more, something that would give her more freedom and fulfill her dreams. It was then that she realized entering the business world could be a big opportunity for her, where she could establish her ideals and work as a socially responsible entrepreneur.

Transition into Business: A New Dawn

When Chanda Mahjabeen's television career reached its peak, she decided to establish herself on a larger scale. She didn't want to limit her life to just the media industry; she wanted to channel her creativity and leadership abilities into the business world.

Thus, Chanda entered the business world, initially starting small ventures. Entering the business world was very challenging for her because she knew she needed to approach it with a new perspective. Her popularity and influence from the TV industry helped her in the business world. However, the biggest help came from her own self-confidence, which pushed her to overcome every obstacle and move forward.

Chanda's first business venture was a small branding project. She invested time and effort into developing a strong strategy. Her business idea focused on women's empowerment, creating creative and functional products for them. This idea led her to success in the business world. Through multiple social projects and entrepreneurial ventures, she established her position and made her business profitable.

New Business Model: Social Responsibility and Humanitarian Perspective

Chanda Mahjabeen's business model was a completely new one, where she didn't focus solely on earning money but also on working for the betterment of society and paying attention to social responsibility. Her business model was such that she didn't just sell products but aimed to do something for the underprivileged and poor sections of society through each product and service. Chanda's perspective was that a successful entrepreneur doesn't just focus on profits but also fulfills her responsibility to society through her business activities. This is why she made significant investments in women's empowerment, environmental awareness, and social development projects through her business. Chanda knew that in order to be successful in business, it's not just about making money, but having a humanitarian perspective and a sense of responsibility towards society.

Chanda's Change: Viewing Life from a New Perspective

After transitioning from the small screen of TV to the business world, Chanda Mahjabeen began to view life from a new perspective. She realized that to bring about change in life, she first had to change herself. Just as she had won people's hearts through television, she now wanted to prove her skills and humanitarian qualities in the business world. This transformation in Chanda's life wasn't just in her career; it also brought a new energy and motivation to her social responsibilities and family life. She knew that to be successful, she had to not only succeed personally but also bring positive changes to the lives of others.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Social Work: Changing Society through Business

Chanda Mahjabeen has made significant efforts to bring important changes to society through her business. One of her main goals has been to employ women, provide training, and create opportunities for them to stand on their own feet and establish themselves in society. She believed that by providing equal opportunities to women, positive change could be brought to society. However, for Chanda, running a business wasn't just about profits. It was a social responsibility. Her business ventures were not just about making money but also contributed to social welfare.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Life: An Inspirational Story

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a story of inspiration, where she made a dramatic shift from television to the business world. The strength and determination she showed while walking the path of struggle and success are lessons for today's generation. The transformation she experienced in her life has had a significant impact not only on her professional life but also on her role in society and family, making it an invaluable lesson for all of us. Chanda Mahjabeen's life teaches us that if our resolve is strong, no obstacle is insurmountable, and success is inevitable.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen's Dramatic Life: From TV to Business

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a tale of dramatic change, where she transitioned from television to becoming a successful businesswoman. Every moment of her life has been a new challenge and struggle. From her childhood to working in the media industry, and later finding success in business, the journey she has taken is an example for all of us. In this article, we will explore Chanda Mahjabeen's transformation and her dramatic change in life.

Starting in Television

Her childhood was ordinary, but she had immense potential, which led her to success in every area of her life. From an early age, she was talented, but she knew that to achieve her life goals, she had to work hard. Chanda understood that success in life wasn't possible just through studying; she needed to take risks and do something different from others. After completing her university studies, Chanda started appearing on television. She quickly became one of the most popular faces on the TV channels of the time. The audience loved her for her on-screen presence and hosting abilities. Her TV shows and programs became immensely popular, and Chanda started her career from there. During this time, she became a shining star in the television industry.

Climbing to the Peak of Popularity

During her time on television, Chanda Mahjabeen earned a reputation as a skilled host and presenter of popular shows. Her excellent hosting skills and charisma made her widely accepted by the audience. Through her shows, she successfully highlighted various social causes, culture, and entertainment. However, Chanda's life was not confined to the spotlight of television. She knew that her work in media was just a part of her life, and her journey and goals needed to reach beyond that. While working in the TV industry, Chanda sometimes felt that she wanted to achieve more, something that would give her more freedom and help her fulfill her dreams. That was when she realized that entering the business world could be a big opportunity, where she could establish her ideals and work as a socially responsible entrepreneur.

Transition into Business: A New Dawn

When Chanda Mahjabeen's television career reached its peak, she decided to establish herself on a larger scale. She didn't want to limit her life to the media industry; she wanted to channel her creativity and leadership skills into the business world.

Thus, Chanda entered the business world, initially starting with small ventures. Entering business was very challenging for her because she knew she had to approach it with a new perspective. Her popularity and influence in the TV industry helped her in business. But the biggest support came from her own self-confidence, which allowed her to overcome every obstacle and move forward. Chanda's first business venture was a small branding project. She invested time and effort into developing a strong strategy. Her business idea focused on women's empowerment, creating creative and functional products for them. This idea helped her achieve success in business. Through multiple social projects and entrepreneurial ventures, she established her position and made her business profitable.

A New Business Model: Social Responsibility and Humanitarian Perspective

Chanda Mahjabeen's business model was a completely new approach, where she didn't focus solely on making money but also on working for the betterment of society and focusing on social responsibility. Her business model was such that she didn't just sell products but aimed to do something for the underprivileged and poor sections of society through each product and service. Chanda's perspective was that a successful entrepreneur doesn't just focus on profits but also fulfills her responsibility to society through her business activities. This is why she invested heavily in women's empowerment, environmental awareness, and social development projects through her business. Chanda knew that to be successful in business, it's not just about making money, but having a humanitarian perspective and a sense of responsibility towards society.

Chanda's Change: Viewing Life from a New Perspective

After transitioning from television to business, Chanda Mahjabeen began to view life from a new perspective. She realized that to bring about change in life, she first had to change herself. Just as she had won people's hearts through television, she now wanted to prove her skills and humanitarian qualities in the business world.

This transformation in Chanda's life wasn't just in her career but also brought a new energy and motivation to her social responsibilities and family life. She knew that to be successful, she had to not only succeed personally but also bring positive changes to the lives of others.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Social Work: Changing Society through Business

Chanda Mahjabeen has made significant efforts to bring important changes to society through her business. One of her main goals has been to employ women, provide training, and create opportunities for them to stand on their own feet and establish themselves in society. She believed that by providing equal opportunities to women, positive change could be brought to society. However, for Chanda, running a business wasn't just about profits. It was a social responsibility. Her business ventures were not just about making money but also contributed to social welfare.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Life: An Inspirational Story

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a story of inspiration, where she made a dramatic shift from television to the business world. The strength and determination she showed while walking the path of struggle and success are lessons for today's generation. The transformation she experienced in her life has had a significant impact not only on her professional life but also on her role in society and family, making it an invaluable lesson for all of us. Chanda Mahjabeen's life teaches us that if our resolve is strong, no obstacle is insurmountable, and success is inevitable.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

The Story of an Entrepreneur and Educator: Chanda Mahjabeen's Social and Professional Role

Chanda Mahjabeen is a successful entrepreneur and educator who has remained steadfast in her dual identities and played a crucial role in society. She has established herself as a businesswoman while also contributing to society through her education and humanitarian work. Chanda Mahjabeen's story is an inspiration, where the blending of her personal and professional life reveals a continuous struggle. Her business acumen and social responsibility have combined to bring her success in life.

In this article, we will analyze Chanda Mahjabeen's social and professional roles, how she has created her position as an entrepreneur and educator, and how her experiences and actions have helped bring change to society.

The Direction of Education

Her childhood was ordinary, but there was a strong emphasis on education within her family. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government employee and a freedom fighter, and her mother was a nurturing woman dedicated to her family. Chanda received ethical education and humanitarian values from her family, which later became the foundation of her life.

Chanda Mahjabeen's educational journey was somewhat challenging, but it was marked by an unstoppable enthusiasm and intelligence. After studying at a local school in Sylhet, she enrolled at Dhaka University in the Department of Sociology. Here, she didn't just focus on academic studies but also began to think deeply about societal improvement, human rights, equality, and social justice. This education prepared her for her future role as both an educator and entrepreneur.

Teaching: Contribution to Building Society

Chanda Mahjabeen's role as an educator began as a student. Her interest in learning and her sense of responsibility towards society inspired her to pursue teaching. She realized that education was the only way to lead a society towards progress. Therefore, she embraced her love for education and interest in it as an important aspect of her life.

Her teaching career began at the school level, where she set an inspirational example for her students through her intelligence and experience. Chanda not only taught lessons but also worked to instill human values, ethics, and social responsibility in her students. The main goal of her teaching career was to develop her students' intellectual abilities and their humanitarian qualities. She believed, "Teaching is not just about imparting knowledge; it is a process of shaping students' mentalities and attitudes."

Chanda Mahjabeen as an Entrepreneur

Chanda Mahjabeen's life as a teacher and entrepreneur complemented each other. She didn't just enter the business world for the sake of managing a company, but she approached business with a social and economic perspective. Her business idea was to create a convenient and secure work environment for women, where they could fully utilize their skills and talents.

Chanda Mahjabeen started her entrepreneurial journey through various small projects, where she specifically focused on women's skills development and creating employment opportunities. Through workshops, training, and educational programs, she created new opportunities for women to stand on their own feet.

However, her entrepreneurial life was not solely for profit. She believed that if a business benefits society, it constitutes real success. Therefore, through her business, she worked to create awareness about education, culture, and human rights. Her business model was built on social responsibility and respect for the right ethical values.

Social Responsibility: Connecting Business and Society

For Chanda Mahjabeen, business was not just a way of earning money; it was a tool for societal improvement. She wanted to fulfill her responsibility towards society through her business. Creating opportunities for women, empowering them through education, and launching various programs for the underprivileged were her main goals.

Chanda worked on women's empowerment and poverty alleviation through her business. She understood that if women were not given equal opportunities, true development would not be possible. Therefore, as a woman entrepreneur, she created new opportunities for women to enter the business world.

Balancing Teaching and Entrepreneurship

Chanda Mahjabeen's life as an educator and entrepreneur was uniquely integrated. She knew that, as a teacher, it was important to fulfill her societal responsibility, just as it was crucial to fulfill her social responsibilities as an entrepreneur. The two key aspects of education and business in her life complemented each other.

As an entrepreneur, Chanda built a bridge between her employees and students, where they received proper guidance for their development. Her teaching life taught her empathy and a sense of responsibility towards people, and her entrepreneurial ventures inspired her to be responsible toward society.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen’s Future: A Story of Inspiration

Chanda Mahjabeen’s life is not just her own story; it is an inspiration for others. She has taught us that no obstacle can hinder our success if we have talent, determination, and willpower. Her life was a struggle, where she achieved success in every field with her intelligence, skills, and steadfast determination.

Chanda’s life is an important lesson for today’s generation: "No matter the circumstances, if you move forward with determination and self-confidence, success will surely come your way."

Chanda Mahjabeen’s story teaches us that talent alone is not enough; determination, resolve, and self-confidence are the qualities that help a person achieve their goals. The way she transitioned from television to the business world and established her place is a true inspiration. Chanda Mahjabeen has proven that with talent and perseverance, one can overcome any challenge in life. Her life is a shining example that teaches us that if we find that talent and resolve within ourselves, we can fulfill our dreams.

From Business to Social Platform: Chanda Mahjabeen’s New Initiative

Chanda Mahjabeen’s life is an inspiring story, where she has transitioned from the business world to creating a social platform as an entrepreneur. This journey is undoubtedly a creative initiative, where the power of business and social responsibility has been bridged. The social initiatives that Chanda has started, using the lessons from her successful business career, are truly positive and motivational for society. In this article, we will explore Chanda Mahjabeen’s transformation from business to a social platform, her new initiatives, and how they are helping to bring about change in society.

The Role of Family Values

Her childhood was ordinary, but the values and ethical education she received from her family have remained the foundation of her life. Chanda’s father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government official and a freedom fighter. His education and experiences in struggle inspired Chanda to always be just and humane. The lessons of love, responsibility, and empathy she learned from her parents were reflected later in both her business life and social initiatives.

When Chanda was studying at a local school in Sylhet, she already knew that education was the key to leading a righteous path in life. Her deep interest in learning and the desire to do something new were evident. Later, she enrolled at Dhaka University in the Department of Sociology, where a new perspective in her life began to unfold. Through her university education, she realized that in order to bring social change and human welfare, she needed to create an effective platform.

Business Journey: First Steps

Starting a business in Chanda Mahjabeen's life was a bold step. Her first initiative was a plan to create training and employment opportunities for women entrepreneurs. Chanda knew that to be a successful entrepreneur, one should not focus solely on profits, but also on social responsibility and humanitarian values.

Her first business initiative was creating employment for women, which later turned into a larger social initiative. Her business idea was to create a platform for women where they could stand on their own feet and make use of their talents. Chanda organized various skill development training sessions and entrepreneurship programs for women, helping them with self-reliance and empowerment.

This way, Chanda began her business journey, and through her enthusiasm and hard work, she established herself in the business world. However, Chanda knew that her business journey was not just for personal profit, but for bringing positive change to society.

Transformation into a Social Platform: A New Initiative

When Chanda Mahjabeen started to succeed in business, a question arose in her mind—"How can I use the strength of my business to bring about positive change in society?" From this thought, Chanda initiated her new venture. She realized that business and social responsibility could complement each other. From this understanding, she created a social platform through which she could work for various segments of society.

The main goal of Chanda's initiative was to empower youth across the country and create an active platform for them, where they could turn their dreams and skills into reality. Her social initiative provides education, training, employment, and support for both men and women to become entrepreneurs.

Social Perspective: Initiatives for the Welfare of People

Chanda Mahjabeen's social platform aimed to work for the welfare of people and bring true change to their lives. She knew that any initiative could only succeed if it was based on social responsibility and accountability. Through her platform, Chanda not only provided education but also created awareness among people.

Her social initiative includes training programs for women entrepreneurs, poverty alleviation, and social welfare programs, all of which have brought about significant changes in society.

Chanda believed that if an individual can change their lifestyle, the impact would be felt across society. Her initiatives have become an example for society, where the strength of business and human responsibility work together.

The Impact of Chanda Mahjabeen's Social Initiatives

Chanda Mahjabeen's social initiatives are distinct and separate from her business model. The main focus of these initiatives was women's empowerment and poverty alleviation. Through her initiatives, Chanda launched several training programs aimed at increasing women's skills, where they could learn job-oriented skills and take part in employment. Additionally, her initiatives also created special employment opportunities for disabled individuals.

Her social platform has worked toward establishing empathy, justice, and equality among people. Chanda has ensured that her platform includes everyone and that people from all walks of life benefit from it. This platform has merged business vision with human values, helping her secure a unique place in society.

Chanda's Future Plans: Expanding the Social Initiative

Chanda Mahjabeen's future plan was to expand her social initiatives and extend them to various regions both within the country and internationally. She wants to make her platform more effective, so that more people can experience positive change in their lives. Her goal is to create new opportunities and employment for people from different social strata in the future.

Chanda knows that her initiative is not just about being an entrepreneur but is becoming an established perspective, where business can bring about social change. She believes that a successful business initiative is not just a means of earning money, but it can be a crucial tool for bringing real change to society.

Chanda Mahjabeen's life and her new initiative teach us that business and social responsibility can complement each other. Her initiative and social platform have proven that an entrepreneur, when working with a humanitarian perspective, can bring about lasting change in society. Chanda's platform is not just business; it is a bridge to social responsibility, humanity, and social development. Her initiative will inspire many in the future and bring the right kind of change to society.

www.asianstate.net
asian.state48@gmail.com
Official facebook Page:
Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen's Life Motto: "One Life, Fight and Win"

Chanda Mahjabeen's life is a story of struggle, where every moment was about standing firm against challenges and adversities. Her life motto, "One life, fight and win," has not only established her as a successful entrepreneur and social worker but also as a role model. This motto is reflected in her lifestyle, where she believes that if one continues to struggle towards their goal in life, victory is possible. In this article, we will delve into the depth of Chanda Mahjabeen's life motto, how she has drawn inspiration from it, and how this motto has helped her remain steadfast on her journey.

The First Lesson in Struggle

Chanda grew up in an environment where she was taught the value of hard work and achieving success through effort. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a government official and a freedom fighter. Her mother was a nurturing woman who set a perfect example of sacrifice and responsibility towards the family.

From an early age, Chanda learned that in life, one should not just wait for opportunities but create them. The lessons she received from her family helped her confront any adversity in life. Chanda knew that success does not come easily; one must invest all their strength, willpower, and time into it.

Education: Moving Forward on the Right Path

Education played a crucial role in Chanda Mahjabeen's life. She started her studies at a local school in Sylhet, and later enrolled at Dhaka University to study sociology. Her university education provided her with a new perspective and way of thinking, where she realized that she must dedicate herself to societal development and the welfare of people. She understood that education should not be limited to books but should be a tool for changing lives. However, Chanda was not just confined to academics; she continued learning about her responsibility towards society and developed her humanitarian values. Chanda believed that to achieve something big in life, one must first build confidence and a courageous mindset. This was the first lesson in her life motto.

Business Life: "Fight and Win"

When Chanda Mahjabeen entered the business world, she knew it would not be easy. Running a business is not just about making profits but is a major struggle, where every day brings new challenges. Chanda was already popular as a television host, but she realized she wanted to achieve something bigger and needed to enter the business world for that. Adopting new strategies in business and working with a sense of social responsibility was Chanda's main goal. Her business wasn't just for profit; she aimed to contribute to social development and support women's empowerment, education, employment, and poverty alleviation. "One life, fight and win" was reflected in every step of her journey. Through her business ventures, she not only focused on herself but also continued to uphold her responsibility towards society.

Among her initiatives, creating employment for women and organizing various training programs to empower them was key. Through these efforts, she realized that business is not just for personal gain, but it is also a platform to contribute to society. She pushed forward with this mission and created a new perspective in the business world.

Social Responsibility: Aiming for Change in Society

The greatest quality in Chanda Mahjabeen's life was her social responsibility. She knew that there is only one life, and in this life, she must do something not only for herself but also for society. Her business was not just about making money; she wanted to create opportunities for people from different walks of life. She started programs for women's employment, education, and social services.

Chanda believed that in order to be successful in business, one must also be responsible towards society. She ran her business with a focus on human values and ethics, where the main goal was not just profit but the welfare of people. The social platform she created became more than just a business; it transformed into a social movement.

Chanda's Life Perspective: Struggle and Victory

Chanda Mahjabeen's perspective on life was clear: "One life, fight and win." She knew that life would never be easy, but if you can build strength and self-confidence, you can face any situation. According to Chanda, to be successful in life, you must overcome every obstacle and view every problem as a new opportunity.

Her life is a story of struggle, inspiration, and courage. She never gave up; rather, her mental strength and determination helped her overcome every difficult time. She always believed, "Nothing is impossible in life if you fight with your heart."

her life motto, "One life, fight and win."

Chanda Mahjabeen's Future: A Desire to Do More

Chanda Mahjabeen's future plans are not just about achieving personal business success but about bringing larger changes to society. Her goal is for everything she has done in her life to serve as a guide for future generations. She believes that if she can share her life experiences and lessons with others, real change will be possible in society. Chanda wants her initiatives to expand even further in the future, benefiting more people. She aims to create more opportunities for women, new job opportunities for marginalized communities, and build a new perspective nationwide.

Chanda Mahjabeen's life and her motto, "One life, fight and win," teach us that if you have self-confidence, determination, and a clear goal, no challenge is too great. Chanda's life is a beautiful example of struggle, courage, and humanity that inspires us all. She has proven that nothing is impossible if you move forward with a strong will.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Chanda Mahjabeen’s Advice: How to Overcome Life’s Tough Moments

There are times in life when we feel lost, when everything seems to go against us, and it feels like there is no way forward. But it is exactly at such times that a successful person overcomes these difficult moments through resilience, self-confidence, and determination, eventually reaching the pinnacle of success. Chanda Mahjabeen, a successful entrepreneur and social worker, has faced many tough moments in her life, and today she stands before us as an inspirational figure. Her story of struggle, pain, and hard work teaches us how mental strength and the right perspective are essential to overcoming life’s tough moments.

In this article, we will discuss the advice Chanda Mahjabeen has shared from her own life, how she overcame life’s challenges, and how she encourages us to follow the same path.

Facing a Crisis

Chanda Mahjabeen’s childhood was ordinary, but her life was never easy. Born into a modest family in Sylhet, she realized from a young age that life was tough. Her father, Kamal Uddin Ahmed, was a freedom fighter, and her mother was a homemaker who ran the household with hard work and ethics. Chanda grew up in a household of scarcity, but her family taught her that, even in tough times, one must move forward with strength and love.

Chanda says, “There were many obstacles in my childhood, but I knew that these would make me stronger.” Growing up amidst hardships, the first lesson she learned in life was, “In tough times, never stray from love and resilience.” This lesson made her courageous and inspired her to stand firm during the adversities in her life.

Education: The First Lesson in Life

Chanda Mahjabeen knew that education was the only way that could help her achieve her goals in life. But she also understood that it’s not just about studying, it’s about how to stay strong and face any situation without fear. Her university years were a tough chapter, where she learned that she had to build herself while overcoming all obstacles.

She says, “In any challenge in life, if I lose my self-confidence, I will never move forward.” Chanda knew that education wasn’t just about gaining knowledge; it was also about building mental strength and resilience in every aspect of life.

Struggles in Business: Tough Moments in Entrepreneurial Life

Chanda Mahjabeen faced numerous obstacles when she first ventured into business. She was completely new to the business world and had no extensive experience in running a business.

She started with small-scale businesses, putting in a lot of hard work and attention. However, there were many challenges in her business journey—competition, financial constraints, lack of business knowledge, and problems making difficult decisions.

But Chanda knew that success doesn't come easily; it requires patience, determination, and hard work. In her words, "Starting a business was not easy, but I knew that if I worked hard and believed in myself, everything would be possible."

According to Chanda, an important strategy in tough moments of life is proving yourself every day. She never gave up but saw every challenge in her business as a new opportunity. Her belief was, "Obstacles will come, but if you handle them well, you will eventually win."

Personal Life: Support from Family and Struggle

Chanda Mahjabeen's life was not just limited to being a businesswoman or entrepreneur; she was also a mother, wife, and a responsible family member. Her personal life also witnessed many tough moments. During times when she was facing business challenges, her family always supported her. She knew that the greatest strength in life comes from the love and support of family.

Chanda says, "My family never made me feel alone. They gave me strength. Whenever life felt hard, they gave me courage." Chanda views her family and their support as one of her greatest sources of strength, helping her overcome every obstacle in her life.

Chanda Mahjabeen's Advice: How to Overcome Life's Tough Moments

From Chanda Mahjabeen's life, we learn that in order to face any tough moment in life, one must first maintain mental strength and self-confidence. Some of her key advice that can help us overcome tough moments in life are:

1. Patience and Determination: Chanda believes that patience and determination are crucial for solving any problem. "Never give up because the fruits of hard work will come at the right time."

2. Self-confidence: The most important thing during tough times is self-confidence. "Believe in yourself, and then overcoming all obstacles will be possible."
3. Mental Strength: According to Chanda, tough moments in life can be faced not only with physical strength but also with mental strength. "If your mind is strong, nothing can defeat you."
4. Family and Empathy: When life becomes difficult, the support of family and loved ones becomes a great source of strength. "The love and empathy of family are a tremendous help."
5. Focusing on Possibilities: Chanda believes that every problem and obstacle holds a hidden possibility. "After every problem, a new opportunity arises. If you handle it correctly, you will win."

Chanda Mahjabeen's life motto, "One life, fight and win," is a powerful lesson that can be applied at every stage of our lives. Her lifestyle teaches us that tough times are never permanent, if we move forward with determination and self-confidence. Her advice provides us with the courage and inspiration to face every struggle and challenge in life. Her life is an example that, in any situation, if we use our strength and willpower, we can achieve success.

www.asianstate.net

asian.state48@gmail.com

Official facebook Page:

Asian State International Journal

Internationally Affiliated by

Paris, France

ISSN Print: 3105-7268; ISSN Online: 3105-7276

The International Standard Serial Number (ISSN) system is a globally recognized standard (ISO 3297) for uniquely identifying continuing resources, such as journals, magazines, and newspapers, regardless of their medium (print or electronic). The system is managed by the ISSN International Centre in Paris, France, and a network of national centers around the world. This structure ensures international affiliation and consistent global application of the standard.

Country Office

Asian State, Bangladesh Chapter

House-40, Road-09, Sector-09, Uttara, Dhaka-1230

Email: asian.state48@gmail.com; Web: www.asianstate.net

Facebook Official Page: Asian State Magazine; Contract Number: +8801821824101

Language based Country & Office location

It's Published Seven Language (Bangla, English, Arabic, Japanese, Korean, Hindi, Chinese)

Bangladesh
Dhaka

UK
London

Saudi Arabia
Riadh

Japan
Shimonoseki

South Korea
Seul

India
Kalkata

China
baizing

